OPTIONAL STANDBY SERVICE RATE IS APPLICABLE TO: (Cont'd.)

3. Designated Technology Exemption of Standby Rates

- a) Customers whose facilities are placed in service after July 29, 2003, and meet the definitions of both Existing Customers and Designated Technology Customers, shall be considered to be Designated Technology Customers for purposes of this section.
- b) Designated Technology Customers whose facilities are placed in service after July 29, 2003, have the option to make a one-time election to be permanently exempt from standby service rates rather than electing full standby service rates upon providing 30 days' written notice before commencing operation of the OSG facility.
- c) Existing OSG projects that upgrade by installing designated technology components, or hybrid projects comprised in part of designated technology components, are eligible for the designated technology exemption only for the upgraded components and only if those components are separately metered.

OPTIONAL ELECTION OF SERVICE RATE FOR CUSTOMERS WITHOUT ON-SITE GENERATION

1. Demand Metered

- a) A demand-metered customer that does not have OSG may opt to select the applicable rates under this Service Classification and be billed under such rates for a period of not less than twelve months in lieu of the rates under their OASC.
- b) Customers are required to have interval metering and shall adhere to the Metering and Communication Requirements as set forth herein, and shall be responsible for all incremental costs associated with such metering and communication.
- c) The Contract Demand shall be established by the Company as set forth in the Company Set Contract Demand section of this Service Classification.
- d) As provided in Rule 7, Revenue Decoupling Mechanism, the delivery revenues of customers without OSG opting to take Standby Service shall be included in the "Actual Billed Delivery Service Revenues" for the customer's OASC.
